HUGHES ASSAILED WILSON'S POLICIES

Outlined in Speech of Acceptance the Issues of Coming Campaign

FOURTH OF SPEECH DEVOTED TO MEXICO

Believes Our Policy Should Be One of Firmness and Consistency — Also Attacks Our Course Toward Germany — Favors Woman's Suffrage.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Charles E. Hughes last night outlined in his speech of acceptance the issues upon which he will conduct his campaign for the presidency.

Mr. Hughes assailed the administration for the course it has pursued with reference to Mexico, maintenance of American rights during the European war, preparedness, and other great questions of the day.

He declared for a new policy of "firmness and consistency" toward Mexico, for the unflinching maintenance of all American rights on land and sea, and for "adequate national defense, adequate protection on both our western and eastern coasts. We demand thoroughness and efficiency in both arms of the service. It seems to be plain that our regular army is too small."

He denounced all plots and conspiracies in the interest of any foreign nation." Mr. Hughes said. "Utterly intolerable is the use of our soil for alien intrigues. Every American must resolutely condemn them and support every effort for their suppression."

The nominee assailed the administration for its "direction of diplomatic interests" from the beginning, declaring that where there should have been conscious strength and expertise there had been weakness and inertness.

He cited Santo Domingo as an instance of the present prosperity Mr. Hughes said that by concentration of industrial and commercial conditions "we see reasons living in a fatal paradise." It is to be said, a prospect brought about by the abnormal conditions of war.

To make peace lasting and effective when the peace war shall end, Mr. Hughes advocated the formation of an international tribunal to dispose of disputes of a justifiable sort, backed by the cooperation of the nations to prevent war before peaceful methods of adjustment.

Mr. Hughes also declared for woman suffrage, for the "conservation of the best interests of labor," for conservation of national resources, and for a national budget.

Mr. Hughes closed with an endorsement of the Republican platform adopted by the national convention and a broad acceptance of the nomination.

The audience, which crowded Carney Hall to capacity, cheered for several minutes when Mr. Hughes appeared shortly after 8 o'clock.

The audience, recognizing Theodore Roosevelt as one of the heroes, waved to him, and Col. Roosevelt clapped his hands in acknowledgment.

Senata Effinger of Ohio, chairman of the nominating committee, was shown every尊重 to the name of the nominee and a Republican victory in November. When he had finished the band played and the crowd rose and cheered again.

Mr. Hughes was frequently interrupted by laughter and applause.

After delivering his speech Mr. Hughes was host at a reception to the nominating committee and the invited guests to the nomination ceremony.

where appointments had gone to "deserving Democrats," and to the failure to continue Ambassador Herrick at his post in Paris after war had started as "a lamentable sacrifice of international repute."

One-fourth of the speech was devoted to Mexico. Step after step taken by the administration with reference to Mexico from the days of Huerta to the note sent the de facto government by the state department June 20 was assailed.

"To attempt to control the domestic concerns of Mexico," Mr. Hughes said, "was simply intervention, not less so because disclaimed. The height of folly was to have a vacillating and ineffective intervention."

America, Mr. Hughes continued, had no policy of aggression toward Mexico, nor desire for any part of her territory, but wished her to have peace, stability and prosperity.

Safeguarding American rights abroad had not been accomplished, Mr. Hughes said, by the administration. There had been "grave words in a series of notes," but what does it avail to use some of the strongest words known to diplomacy if ambassadors can receive the impression that the words are not to be taken seriously?

The nominee reiterated his declaration that had this government left no doubt that it meant to hold Germany to strict accountability, "there would have been no loss of life on the Lusitania." During this period, he said, the only danger is to be in the weak course of the administration.

Discussing preparedness Mr. Hughes said it was apparent that the United States was "shockingly unprepared." That the administration should have allowed such conditions to exist, while pursuing its course in Mexico, was incredible, he said.

"The administration has failed to discharge its responsibilities," Mr. Hughes continued. "Apparently it is now seeking to meet justified exigencies by its hasty program. But it has imposed adequate protection on both our western and eastern coasts. We demand thoroughness and efficiency in both arms of the service. It seems to be plain that our regular army is too small."

Mr. Hughes also declared for woman suffrage, for the "conservation of the best interests of labor," for conservation of national resources, and for a national budget.

CAPTAIN FRYATT WAS "MURDERED"

Asquith Says Germans Have Resumed Terrorism — Offenders Will Have to Pay Penalty.

LONDON, August 1.—It appears to be true that Captain Fryatt was murdered by the Germans," said Premier Asquith in the house of commons yesterday afternoon, in reply to a question by Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists.

"The British government," the premier added, "heeded with deep indignation of this atrocious crime against the law of nations usage of war. Coming as it does contemporaneously with the lawless cruelties to the population of Lille and other occupied portions of France, it shows that the German high commands under the stress of a military defeat, have renewed their policy of terrorism.

"It is impossible to conjecture to what further atrocities they may proceed, but the government desires to repeat most emphatically their resolve when the time comes that these crimes shall not go unpunished."

"When the time arrives they are determined to bring to justice the criminals, whoever they may be, and whatever their position. In a case such as this the man who authorized the system under which the crime was committed may well be the most guilty of all."

"The question of what immediate action should be taken is engaging the earnest attention of the government, and I hope to make announcement shortly."

Sir Edward Carson suggested that the house should pass a bill making it clear that Great Britain would refuse to admit the German people into the country of nations until "such crimes are expiated."

Premier Asquith said he would consider the matter.

ESCAPED ELECTROCUTION.

Greenfield Lineman Was Unconscious 10 Minutes After Shock.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Aug. 1.—Charles Woodward of Main street, formerly of South Derryfield, Brattleboro, employed by the Greenfield Electric Light and Power company, narrowly escaped electrocution yesterday afternoon while at work on a pole at the lower end of Derryfield street. With a current carrying 2,500 voltage his body was grounded between a primary electric circuit and a telephone cable. Both of his hands and fingers were badly burned.

Ric Shimpel, working with him on a cross iron, lifted Woodward's hand which probably saved the man's life. The circuit was broken and Woodward fell 20 feet to the ground. He was unconscious for 10 minutes and later was taken to the Franklin County hospital. His recovery is expected. Wooded wore leather gloves, but protection of the atmosphere caused the pronto burns.
